Hurricanes, Floods, Earthquakes, or Tornadoes.

Becoming a victim of a natural disaster may be impossible to avoid. You can, however, avoid being victimized by dishonest contractors often found lurking in their wake.

After a natural disaster, sales people go from door-to-door in damaged neighborhoods, offering clean-up or repair services. While many of these business people are honest and reputable, others are not. Educate yourself against unscrupulous operators and avoid becoming a victim of disaster fraud.

When Someone Comes to Your Door Offering Their Services, Consult This Checklist Before You Act.

- Get more than one estimate. Don't be pushed into signing a contract right away.
- Get everything in writing. Cost, work to be done, time schedule, guarantees, payment schedule and other expectations should be detailed.
- Demand references and check them out.
- Ask to see the salesperson's driver's license and write down the license number. Also, take down the license plate number.
- Never sign a contract with blanks. Unscrupulous contractors may enter unacceptable terms later.
- Never pay a contractor in full or sign a completion certificate until the work is completed.
- Insurance coverage may be rendered void if intentional misrepresentation by a policyholder is discovered.
- A catastrophe greatly magnifies the opportunity for fraud and abuse. Don't be tempted to conspire in an insurance claim. Insurance fraud is a felony.
